SUMMARY

I am self-motivated and organized with a better interest in software engineering. I seek to deploy the skills I have learned in coding, debugging, and testing in real-life programming projects. I pay much attention to collaborative development teams because I can make the best out of my technical skills, problem-solving skills, and work dedication. I am strongly built with a passion for improved learning and professional development in my field of practice which makes me always consider any chance that can afford me the opportunity to update myself on new trends and standards in the market.
